Dear M. Jourda,

Rosenblatt is a law firm in the City of London with a dedicated renewables team. Alongside our on-going legal work over the past couple of years we have built a network of contacts dedicated to funding, floating, asset-financing, developing, auditing and advising renewable and clean energy projects.

We believe that introduction and collaboration are the keystones of successful business advice. Last year we held the first annual Rosenblatt New Energy Awards, and this year we have produced the little green book, a Europe-wide directory of companies, firms and associations actively involved in all sectors of the industry to assist businesses in the renewable sector. In the course of our research we identified you as a company in the architects, developers and constructors sector, and enclose a copy of the book for your records.

Both entry in the book and the book itself are entirely free and discretionary. This is the first edition of the book, and we are keen to receive your feedback – if you think there should be additional sections, wish to nominate another company to be listed, want to amend your entry for future editions or would like additional copies to send to your clients, please email greenbook@rosenblatt-law.co.uk. Research for the second edition will start shortly, and we would appreciate your input to increase the coverage of companies and sectors.

If you would like to learn more about Rosenblatt or the New Energy Awards please visit www.rosenblatt-law.co.uk or email me at tessal@rosenblatt-law.co.uk.

Yours sincerely

Tessa Laws ROSENBLATT the little green book
