The third programme in our series of architecture lectures focuses on the subject of fantasy. Extraordinary buildings – realised and imagined – from the past, present and future will be discussed by high profile writers, curators and architects.

The first wednesday lecture programme began in October 2004 with speakers such as Sunday Times architecture correspondent Hugh Pearman and renowned artist Nils Norman whose use of worms and utopian ideals presented an alternative ecological approach to sustainable living.

The lecture programme aims to develop a space for critical debate on issues relating to architecture, regeneration and urban transformation.

Programme devised and organised by Jes Ferrie, Firstsite associate.

Booking: All lectures are free but booking is essential. Contact Firstsite to reserve your seat.
